

Any Given Day

„This is who we are and this is where we stay“

Metal shooting stars ANY GIVEN DAY from the heart of the German Ruhr Area release their second album 'Everlasting' on August 26 and even aside from the title they make unmistakably clear that the band is ready to take the next step in its career with complete power and loudness.

In 2014 ANY GIVEN DAY successfully transformed with their debut 'My Longest Way Home' from being an internet hype (the cover of the Rihanna song 'Diamonds' has been watched millions of times) into a surprising Top 30 German chart entry and main stage (festival) act (i.a. With Full Force, Rock Im Revier, Summer Breeze). In 2016 the five-piece is set to prove that ANY GIVEN DAY are not only here to stay, they are also ready to raise the energy level once more.

Even though for the creation of 'Everlasting' ANY GIVEN DAY relied on the proven setup of the first album, the variability of the sound was incomparably raised in comparison to the precursor. Many songs appear to be much more accessible and diverse, without losing their potential to be long-lasting growers. That artists with such high standards put up a guest list that is short and at the same time high-class, goes without saying: On the already live-proved and tested 'Arise' you can hear the voice of no one less than TRIVIUM's Matthew Heafy.

Right in time when they were part of the impressing line-up of the IMPERICON festivals and the PROGRESSION tour, that rolled through Europe this spring, ANY GIVEN DAY released the forerunner 'Endurance' and for the festival summer as well as for the oncoming release tour they have one or the other ace up their sleeves. Hands down: 'Everlasting'
